

Nuffy Bear's Big Brave Adventure

Hello, my name is

I like to be called

Things I like

Things I don't like

Things that make me feel safe and comfortable

Things that will make my visit better

Things about me (hobbies/siblings/people who are important to me)

Nuffy Bear lived in a cosy cave in the woods and loved playing with friends.

They liked clapping paws, tapping pots, banging drums and making silly music together.

"I don't feel well,"

One day, Nuffy felt funny inside.

"I don't feel well,"
said Nuffy to Big Bear.

Big Bear wanted to help, so off they went to the hospital.

At the hospital, Nuffy met the friendly Radiographer Rabbit

Radiographer Rabbit had a nice smile, kind eyes and big fluffy ears.

"I have a cave, too," said Radiographer Rabbit.

"It uses clever science to take special pictures inside your body to help doctors understand what might be wrong."

Nuffy smiled. Caves are where fun things happen.

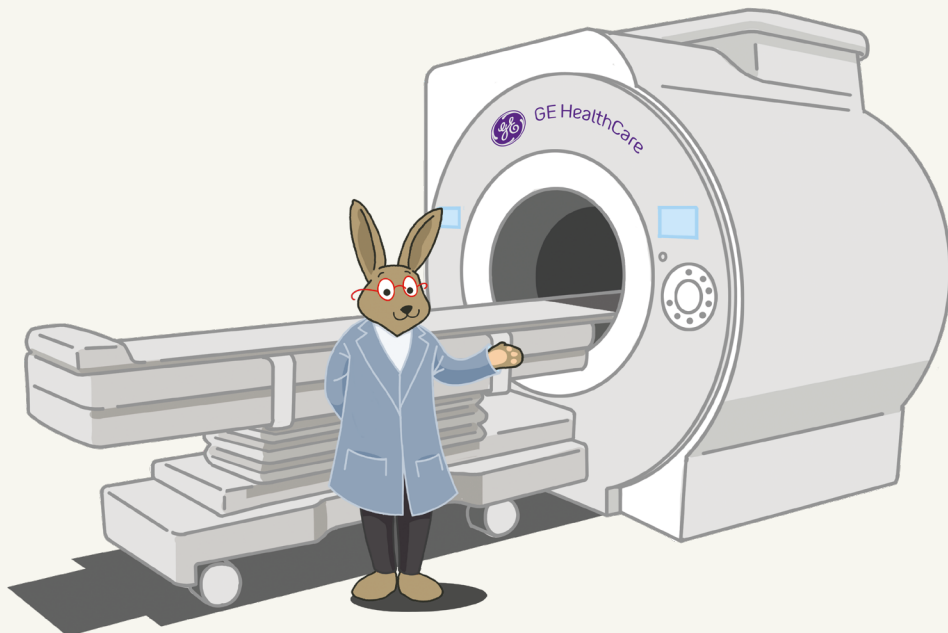

Radiographer Rabbit told Nuffy that nothing metal could go in the magic cave.

Nuffy took off their bracelets, gave them to Big Bear and changed into some comfy pyjamas.

Radiographer Rabbit's cave was big and bright, with a soft bed and really cool lights.

"To help the cave take pictures you need to lie very, very still," said Radiographer Rabbit

"Like a sleeping teddy."

Nuffy practiced lying as still as a sleeping teddy – it was easy!

"The cave will make some loud noises," said Radiographer Rabbit,

"But that's okay. Each noise is just like a musical instrument."

Nuffy put on some headphones and smiled.

They knew exactly what to do.

The bed slowly moved into the cave.

CLAP. TAP. BANG.

Nuffy lay very, very still and imagined being at home, making silly music with friends.

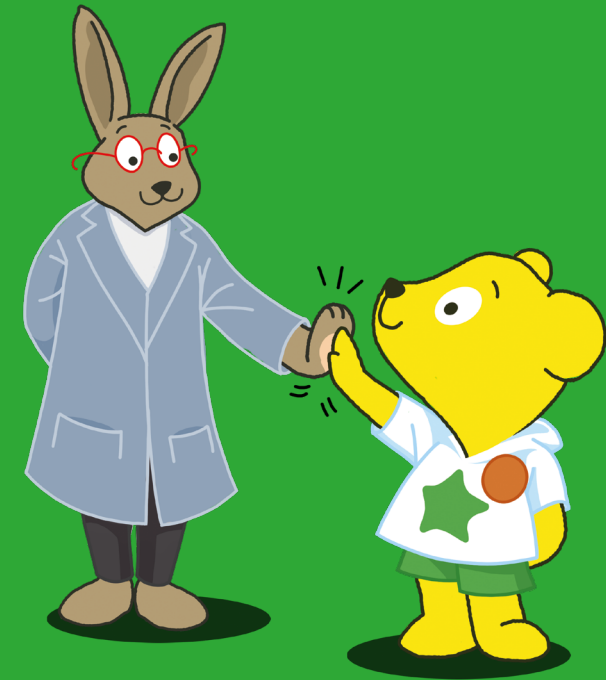

Clap-clap-clap went their paws, Tap-tap-tap went the pots, Bang-bang-bang went the drums.

Soon, the sounds stopped, and Nuffy's time in the cave was over. "All done!" said Radiographer Rabbit.

"You were amazing!"

Then he gave Nuffy a high-five.

"You're a superstar, Nuffy Bear!" he said.

Nuffy waved goodbye to the cave.

"Thank you, magic music cave!"

Nuffy went home feeling brave, happy and ready to play music with friends again.

